

All races in the Tall Ship with these boats and these polars are very difficult and require a lot of application and especially calm .... do not be fooled by the higher speed that occurs at the moment, but carefully work out when to start pushing ... in anticipation ..the winds were manifested by W and so my choice was then a matter of luck, as tall ships are not at all good at these things ....

I started by chance and after the first night I found myself in very good position in the West than in the group of the first, and PetrM and I were very close for 2 whole days and my position was definitely better being between him and the marks!

On the last night, unable to follow the boat, I found myself with an advantage over PetrM too but in the East, and so for him it was an easy game to get past me and get clear advantage to the last buoy .... I have to say however PetrM is really GREAT (like so many others in SOL). Although there were other good Solers in the rear, for me the race at this point had been reduced to just the two of us ..... and the who is better rightly won it.

I always remember all the main slogan of Sir WIN this game .... KEEP HARD! good wind at all!
