

After 3 years virtual sailing I'm very grateful and impressed to win a race. Other races this year taught me that the weather on this route is almost unpredictable.

That's why in this area qTVlm proved to be quite unreliable and as it recommended to go for north, I followed Zezo which recommended to go for south.

Also I kept an eye on others that went south. About 113degreesWest (380nM before finish) everybody went again north and I went south. This move brought me the small advantage to win the race.

Last day it became very close because of the bad wx but one step is enough!!!
