

As this was my first race in SOL I've started the first leg without even knowing about performance loss when changing course so I think I've wasted some time on unnecessary turns.

Short before passing Dirk Hartog island, weather forecasts were quite clear that I should move west.

I have designed my paths and inserted a lot of DC's 3-4 times per day (almost every new forecast) as most of the race was unattended. I was lucky that no big changes occurred on upcoming forecasts as I was not able to follow all of them.

I was clearly behind rumskip all time during the race but also keeping and protecting my second place (from the boats in the West group).

I'm preparing for the next race and my goal is to try to be in the top 10 boats to check the proper functioning of my path designing strategy.

Well done everybody
