

.....Winning is always nice and it is particularly exciting to be among the best in this special game.

The race saw a good starting point at the beginning for the Scandinavians (Sassy and Robert). In my view the decisive point was the approach between Umak Island and Chugul Island where I made a big mistake!

At that point I thought Careka and Zoe had an advantage, but surely I continued to be precise, when we passed Ulak Island, having noticed how diminished the performance for each operation, I decided to go along to W when Careka right now and also Zoe have anticipated the descent to S.

Being ahead of Winston and Rumskib (real professional SOLers: THEY DO NOT EVER GO WRONG) was easy to understand the precise point of maneuver and control them to the finish.

For me that I had left the game for a few months it was a great night suffering but I am very happy with the result.

So just a lot of luck despite major competition and as always says our admiral: "KEEP HARD!"

Congratulations to the organizers and all participants the Franci....