Some facts can be extracted from the 3 race editions:

- In April.2017 New Zealand Eolus went on holidays. Even with the availability of the fast Ker 40, it was even slower than the previous race edition (in 2015), raced on OD mode with the First 44.7 and won by Viktor of Kenza fame;
- One year and some days after the present 40' race we had the fastest of all three almost 34 % faster than previous one, just compare the overall time of the first Ker 40 this year, Kipper1258, with the time of the 2017 edition honorable winner, in casu, Jan from bonknhoot.
- Again, the Farr 400 boats evaporated the remaining fleet times. Something that's consolidating, particularly in races where you have a longer cumulus of downwind legs, which was/is the case in the Auckland-Gisborne SOL course;
- Comparing the times between the first Far 400 and winner LastCal276 with the first non-Far, Andrew's Ker 40 Kipper 1258, we conclude that in actual race conditions, the Far is 17 % faster than the Ker;
- Using an average distance made from the previous editions winners (318,7 nm + 291.1 nm) ÷ 2 = 304,9 nm, we see the Far 400 gets roughly 0,90 minutes per sailed nm against the Ker, so, the longer the downwind leg the greater will be the final time difference. Simple and no less faster:
- Two ways to avoid this chronic leaderboard bias (for the Farr 400). The first solution, the fairer IMHO as it applies from dead slow to ultra-faster boats, is by means of corrected times, alias, something already suggested by several SOLers, me included. The second solution can be achieved bringing inside the Series new 40' boats that can level the actual sailing differences. Also suggested, as we have a Carkeek 40 parked in the SOL boatyard (when it comes the time to put her on sails she'll have to go on an overall paint job).

This year we had essentially four wind legs.

Start upwind till Cape Coolville, ease the sheets for a long curve till White Island rounding, "touching" before the SW tip of the Great Mercury Island and sail inside more WP in the East side of the rhumb line. Rounding White for the second upwind leg with a right shift wind while losing pressure before reaching near Otarawhat Island and last, a smaller and quicker pure downwind leg till the FL in Gisborne after rounding East Island.

While the gun was fired in Auckland at 02:00 hrs UTC, I was nicely resting in my bunk confident with the previous routed DC's from the 22:30 hrs UTC WF.

We had two options for leaving Auckland SL.

A conservative one which would put us tacking between Motutapu and Motuihe Islands and further up till reaching an "horizontal" layline to make the North of Fletcher Bay, or to leave the SL on Starboard till two tacking points around Shakespear Regional Park land tip.

The last option was a little more risky (lengthy tacks more exposed to eventual wind shifts or to a more dramatic 04:30 hrs UTC WF change), with less LP (=less tacks) but proved to be the correct one and the result was psail went for the downwind leg in Colville even behind some non-Far boats (if I recall right around #10 position just after being crossed in the bow by RainbowChaser - yes, she sailed again superbly this upwind leg and was then confortable in front of psail).

Rounding Colville early in the morning was easy and allowed me to use the previous 04:30 hrs UTC WF to make a partial route till White Island. By then I was around #8 - #9 and the remaining non-Ker boats not very far. Again, speed outside the rhumb line...ruled.

Before the second upwind leg the remaining boat fleet was out of sight well behind, This leg was also an easy one and to me the right option was to sail it a little above VMG, Up and tack 8,50 nm before the coast to get again inside better WP to North, avoid an extra tack in poorer wind near the Coast. It paid with one more position on the leaderboard.

Last leg, after rounding East Island, psail was in #4 smelling hew565.

A quick walk on the previous routing confirmed the correct option: go a little offshore for an increasing WP and compensate it with the right wind shift plus with extra speed. The majority of near followers went for the "shortcut" sailing inside VMG,Down near land.

Initially sailing lower gave the (false) impression that was the faster way to touch the FL. No, it wasn't and allowed psail to gain the final podium position to buncha.

Brass again.

For the Series I'm now on #2 but still with a couple of brand new Sotos to sail in and a spare Far and Ker. Next races will be very interesting on skippers' boat choices.

Congratulations to all Class podiums.

Cheers all!
