

bad, eh?!

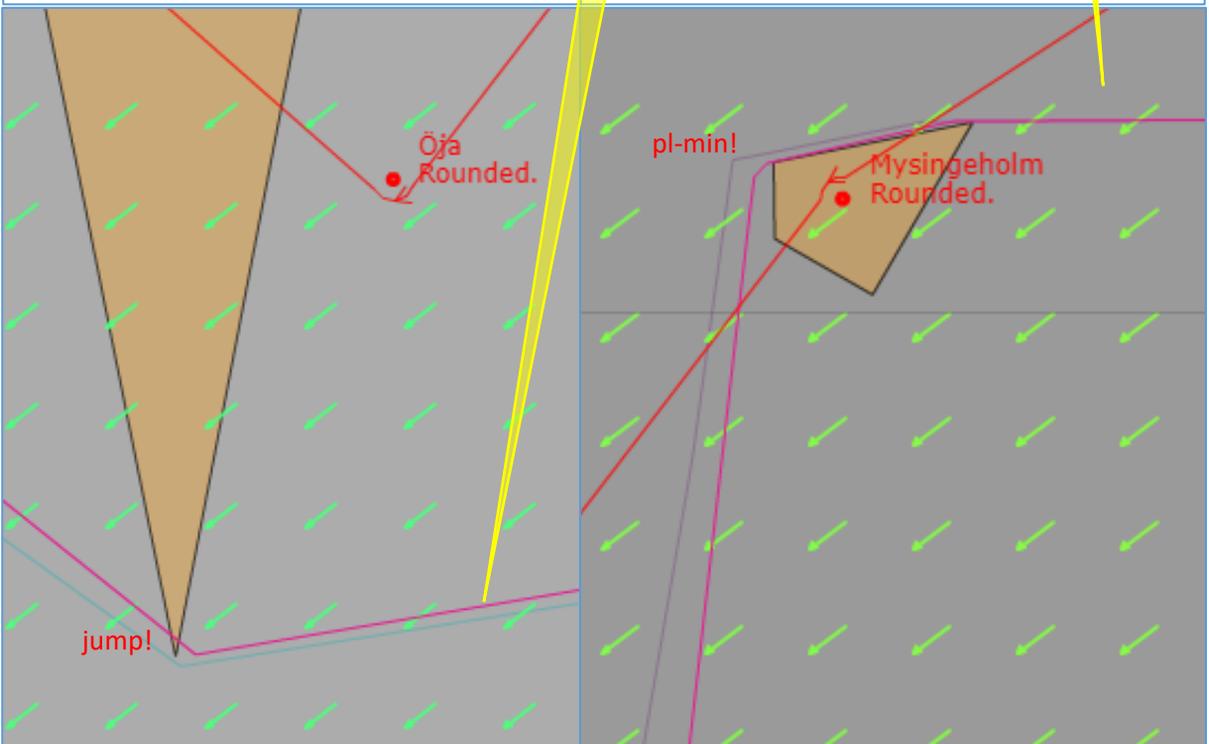

Routing with plenty of loss on tacks and gybes, 'avoid coasts' off, and a barrier set to force rounding Mysingeholm island.

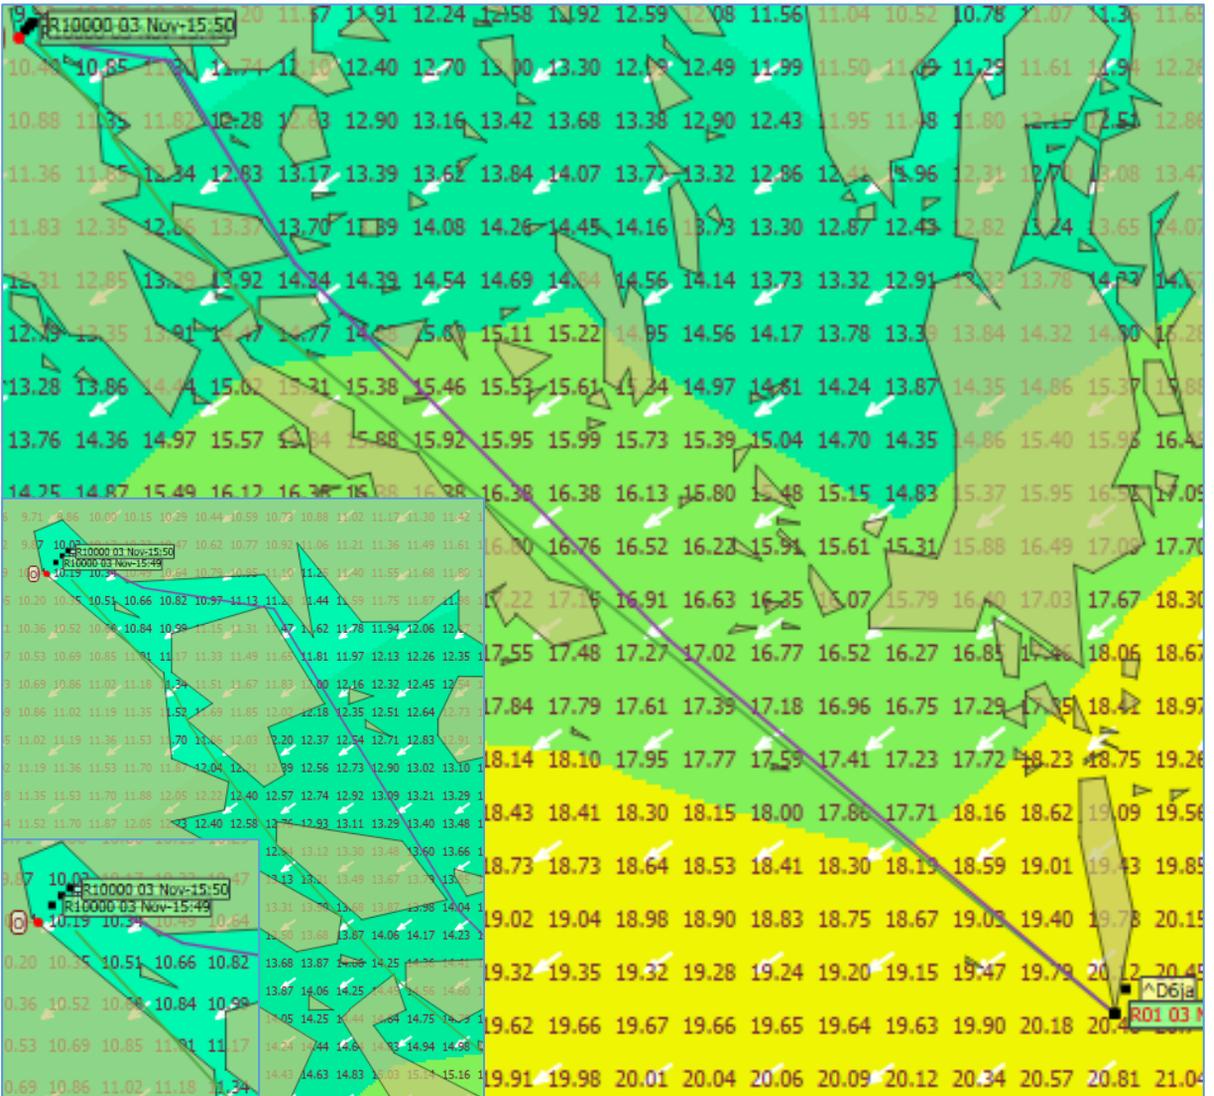

Routing with 'avoid coasts' off again, says... get out onto the open sea as quick as you can, same as in 2017, when rumskib pipped me, but with wind from astern instead of ahead this time.

Knew the gap at Aspön was a pretty safe passage in 2017, so steered for that. Outlaw, our eventual runner-up went for the more (over?) ambitious plan to passage through the super-narrow Rånösundet, which proved too difficult.

Two very fortuitous roundings helped the cause!

The southern approach is the shorter route and normally has a little more wind. Unsurprisingly, the router agreed it was the way to go!
