

At the start I set a straight course for the first turn, hoping the wind direction would not affect me too much at the end. It turned out to be close to the perfect choice. Round the Chilov island we had three turns to negotiate; for me all three were mediocre to a little late. That's where sassy63 was more awake than me and managed a second quicker. I was however surprised when knockando60 turned late on turn two; fortunately for him the wind angle was in his favour and he managed to finish in fourth place. The main thing was concentration on the turns. I thank all participants for racing, and hope to see you in the next race.
