

Inhaca RTI Sprint 2021

Race report, SY Smo

For a long I happened to start in time and there was a race suitable length for my short concentration. Had decent start but no plans, just sail. At first WP I went south because I thought there was a small windshift but many fast boats gybed north and I thought that was it, no hurry anymore. Seems north route was 0.03nm shorter. But I was not far from #1 at next WP .. little restless steering might have scraped paint there as did also #2 jhk scrape at some other corner. #1 RC seemed sailing clear. Round island was straightforward, not much tactic. Clockwork and DC-clock steering rest of route lifted ranking just about to podium, beating #4 sadlersailing by 1 second, sorry for that mate. Round polar of Mini helps downwind but with different winds there could have been possibility for trickier directions down. Nice to be back to podium, there was a time when Smo was fast (lucky) :)
