

Kanehoe race report

I started this race during my holidays in Greece looking at very nice landscape in Crete: Probably this together with Neptune God of the Seas helped me in this race in which I followed a simple strategy (stay in the middle) as I was checking the race few time for day, also missing some WX and following most on the smartphone than on pc, so I was looking more at the movement of other competitors.

In particular I was looking at Hasty and Slide that preferred a shorter east route and Dingo that for some time was leading the race choosing a longer west route but with higher pressure.

Rafa choose an excellent route slightly more at east than me and in the final he was able to overcome me. So in the final me and Rafa coming with better angle were able to develop a good speed but not enough to catch HastySlug, luckily was enough to gain the third position in front of Sliderule. I am particularly happy for this podium as is the first time I am able to finish an oceanic race in such good position and I made big compliments to all the skippers closing in the top positions.

Nicola