

The Vineyard Race 2022 - report

by WRmirekd

It's been a long time since I wrote a race report. I almost forgot how to do it. Fortunately, Vida wrote a very detailed report and I can only confirm it.

The last two years I have won this race and I was very curious if I would make it for the third time.

This time Vida was better. Who knows, maybe the magic of knowing the local body of water does matter?

This extra tack by Vida probably really made me lose to him.

And finally. It really was Vida who made sure I didn't miss the last mark. Maybe Patrick and the others weren't very happy about it. However, the most beautiful part of our competition is fair play and respect for the opponent. Recently, Sax747 also tried to warn me about an unexpected change of course.

Thanks to everyone for such a beautiful sports attitude and I dedicate my podium to all participants of this race.
