

Hello SOLers....

A finish on the podium a little unexpected as the race was so close...

On this beautiful descent of the Atlantic, the options were not numerous. There were a few attempts from the east, with good speeds. But they turned out to be unsuccessful in the end.

So there were a number of us who followed the same path. This race was therefore down to the precision and regularity of the routing (which was not always the case for me).

@SimeMali was very quickly in the lead of the race and I didn't manage to catch him even if I came close a few times.

We must salute the Squadra which, in these long races, are always at the front with impressive regularity!! Bravissimo!!

Congratulations also to @Panpyc for his great comeback at the end of the race. !! 😊

See you soon.
